Question 1: Document-Based Question, Role of the Federal Government — 7 points

General Scoring Notes

- Except where otherwise noted, each point of these rubrics is earned independently; for example, a student could earn a point for evidence without earning a point for thesis/claim.
- Accuracy: The components of these rubrics require that students demonstrate historically defensible content knowledge. Given the timed nature of the exam, essays may contain errors that do not detract from their overall quality, as long as the historical content used to advance the argument is accurate.
- Clarity: Exam essays should be considered first drafts and thus may contain grammatical errors. Those errors will not be counted against a student unless they obscure the successful demonstration of the content knowledge, skills, and practices described below.

Evaluate the extent to which the role of the federal government in the United States economy changed from 1932 to 1980.

© 2025 College Board

| Reporting Category | Scoring Criteria | |
|---|---|---|
| Row AThesis/Claim(0–1 points) | 0 pointsDoes not meet the criteria for one point. | 1 pointResponds to the prompt with a historically defensible thesis/claim that establishes a line of reasoning. |
| | Decision Rules and Scoring Notes | |
| | Responses that do not earn this point:• Are not historically defensible.• Only restate or rephrase the prompt.• Do not respond to the prompt.• Do not establish a line of reasoning.• Are overgeneralized. | Responses that earn this point:• Provide a historically defensible thesis or claim about the extent to which the role of the federal government in the United States economy changed from 1932 to 1980. The thesis or claim must either provide some indication of the reason for making that claim OR establish categories of the argument. |
| | Examples that do not earn this point:Provide a restatement of the prompt• "The role of the federal government in the United States economy changed from 1932 to 1980."Provide a historically defensible claim, but do not establish a line of reasoning• "The United States economy experienced both recessions and boom periods from 1932 to 1980."Provide an overly generalized response to the prompt• "The federal government was not very interested in the United States economy from 1932 to 1980." | Examples that earn this point:Establish a line of reasoning that evaluates the topic of the prompt• "From 1932 to 1980, the federal government became increasingly invested in finding ways to use federal power to ensure economic stability and growth, which later produced criticism of the expansion of federal power."Establish a line of reasoning that evaluates the topic of the prompt with analytic categories• "The period between 1932 and 1980 was marked by the rise and fall of a New Deal order in United States politics, one that witnessed federal government intervention into the economy, the formation of new social programs, and the creation of new regulatory agencies."Establish a line of reasoning• "The government increased its role in the economy by actively creating programs to provide jobs to workers." [Minimally acceptable thesis/claim] |
| | Additional Notes:• The thesis or claim must consist of one or more sentences located in one place, either in the introduction or the conclusion (which may not be limited to the first or last paragraphs).• The thesis or claim must identify a relevant development(s) in the period, although it is not required to encompass the entire period. | |

© 2025 College Board

| Reporting Category | Scoring Criteria | |
|---|---|---|
| Row B Contextualization(0–1 points) | 0 pointsDoes not meet the criteria for one point. | 1 pointDescribes a broader historical context relevant to the prompt. |
| | Decision Rules and Scoring Notes | |
| | Responses that do not earn this point:• Provide an overgeneralized statement about the time period referenced in the prompt.• Provide context that is not relevant to the prompt.• Provide a passing phrase or reference. | Responses that earn this point:• Accurately describe a context relevant to the role of the federal government in the United States economy from 1932 to 1980. |
| | Examples that do not earn this point:Do not provide context relevant to the topic of the prompt• "Economic panics shed light on the weaknesses of the federal government during the era of the Articles of Confederation."Provide an overgeneralized statement about the time period referenced in the prompt• "The government was very active in people's lives during the time period." | Examples of relevant context that earn this point include the following, if appropriate elaboration is provided:• Jacksonian debates about the economy• Gilded Age• Laissez-faire economics• First World War• Roaring Twenties• 1929 stock market crash/Black Friday• Cold War• GlobalizationExamples of acceptable contextualization:• "During the Gilded Age, many businesses and politicians argued that government should pursue laissez-faire policies and not be involved in the economy."• "The stock market crashed, causing lots of unemployment." [Minimally acceptable contextualization] |
| | Additional Notes:• The response must describe broader historical events, developments, or processes that occur before, during, or continue after the time frame of the question that are relevant to the topic of the prompt.• To earn this point, the context provided must be more than a phrase or reference. | |

© 2025 College Board

| Reporting Category | Scoring Criteria | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Row C Evidence from Documents | 0 pointsDoes not meet the criteria for one point. | 1 pointUses the content of at least three documents to address the topic of the prompt. | 2 pointsSupports an argument in response to the prompt using at least four documents. |
| (0–2 points) | Decision Rules and Scoring Notes | | |
| | Responses that do not earn points:• Use evidence from less than three of the documents• Misinterpret the content of the document• Quote the content of the documents without providing an accompanying description• Address documents collectively rather than considering separately the content of each document | Responses that earn 1 point:• Accurately describe—rather than simply quote—the content from at least three of the documents to address the role of the federal government in the United States economy from 1932 to 1980.Examples of describing the content of a document:Describe evidence from the documents relevant to the topic but do not use that evidence to support an argument• [Document 1]: "Document 1 discusses racial discrimination in New Deal programs."• [Document 2]: "Document 2 shows a government program to recruit migrant farm workers." | Responses that earn 2 points:• Support an argument in response to the prompt by accurately using the content of at least four documents.Examples of supporting an argument using the content of a document:• [Document 7]: "As illustrated in Document 7, by the 1970s, more and more political leaders were arguing that the government was interfering too much in the economy through taxation and regulation." [Uses evidence from the document to support an argument about changing attitudes towards government spending]• [Document 6]: "Document 6 shows how some groups in the United States, such as farm workers, advocated for the United States government to support their efforts at gaining economic opportunities and protections." [Uses evidence from the document to support an argument about how labor unions advocated for increased government intervention in the economy] |
| | Additional Notes:• To earn two points, the four documents do not have to be used in support of a single argument—they can be used across sub-arguments or to address counterarguments. | | |

© 2025 College Board

| Row CEvidence Beyond Documents(0–1 points) | 0 pointsDoes not meet the criteria for one point. | 1 pointUses at least one additional piece of specific historical evidence [beyond that found in the documents] relevant to an argument in response to the prompt. |
|---|---|---|
| | Decision Rules and Scoring Notes | |
| | Responses that do not earn this point:• Provide evidence that is not relevant to an argument about the prompt.• Provide evidence that is outside the time period or region specified in the prompt.• Repeat information that is specified in the prompt or in any of the documents.• Provide a passing phrase or reference. | Responses that earn this point:• Must use at least one specific piece of historical evidence relevant to the extent to which the role of the federal government in the United States economy changed from 1932 to 1980.Examples of specific and relevant evidence beyond the documents that earn this point include the following, if appropriate elaboration is provided:• Great Depression• New Deal• Franklin Roosevelt• Liberalism• Postwar economic growth• Baby boom• GI Bill• Conservatism• New Right• Great Society• Lyndon B. Johnson• Civil Rights movement• Dolores Huerta• Deindustrialization in the Rust Belt• Ronald ReaganExamples of evidence beyond the documents relevant to an argument about the prompt:• "Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society further expanded the federal government's role in the economy by creating government programs to fight poverty." [Provides a piece of evidence not in the documents relevant to an argument about the prompt]• "Ronald Reagan gained support in the Election of 1980 by arguing that the federal government should have less control over the economy." [Provides a piece of evidence not in the documents relevant to an argument about the prompt] |
| | Additional Notes:• Typically, statements credited as evidence will be more specific than statements credited as contextualization.• To earn this point, the evidence provided must be different from the evidence used to earn the point for contextualization.• To earn this point, the evidence provided must be more than a phrase or reference.• The point for evidence beyond the documents may be awarded for evidence that appears in any part of the response. | |

© 2025 College Board

<table>
<tr><th>Reporting Category</th><th colspan="2">Scoring Criteria</th></tr>
<tr><td rowspan="3">Row DAnalysis and ReasoningSourcing(0–1 points)</td><td>0 pointsDoes not meet the criteria for one point.</td><td>1 pointFor at least two documents, explains how or why the document’s point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience is relevant to an argument.</td></tr>
<tr><td colspan="2">Decision Rules and Scoring Notes</td></tr>
<tr><td>Responses that do not earn this point:• Explain sourcing for fewer than two of the documents.• Identify the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience but fail to explain how or why it is relevant to an argument.• Summarize the content or argument of the document without explaining the relevance of this summary to the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience.Examples that do not earn this point:Identify the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience, but do not explain how or why it is relevant to an argument• “Document 3 was photographed during the Cold War.”Summarize the content of the document without explaining the relevance of this to the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience• “Document 1 claims the Works Progress Administration discriminated against women of color.”</td><td>Responses that earn this point:• Must explain how or why—rather than simply identifying—the document’s point of view, purpose, historical situation, or audience is relevant to an argument that addresses the prompt for each of the two documents sourced.Example of acceptable explanation of the relevance of the author’s point of view:• [Document 7]: “Document 7 demonstrates how Republicans like Holt began to more actively attempt to limit the role of the federal government, which marked a turn away from the predominance of liberalism in the 1950s and 1960s.” [Connects the point of view of the document relevant to an argument about changing ideas about the role of the federal government in the United States economy]Example of acceptable explanation of the relevance of the author’s purpose:• [Document 4]: “In Document 4, President John F. Kennedy’s purpose was to promote the idea that the United States had a moral obligation to intervene and help citizens through actions like government programs to provide health insurance to older Americans.” [Connects the purpose of the document relevant to an argument about how liberal ideas in the postwar era promoted government action in the economy to address social issues]Example of acceptable explanation of the relevance of the historical situation of a source:• [Document 3]: “Document 3 illustrates how competition with the Soviet Union during the Cold War influenced the federal government’s decision to spend money on federal projects, such as the interstate highway system.” [Connects the historical situation of the document relevant to an argument about the role of foreign affairs in the changing role of government in the economy]Example of acceptable explanation of the relevance of the audience:• [Document 1]: “The audience for Document 1 was government officials who both supported the expansion of government aid during the New Deal, while they also needed to maintain popular support for the New Deal amongst southern segregationists.” [Connects the audience of the document relevant to an argument about the differences in the outcomes of government intervention in the economy for different groups]</td></tr>
</table>

© 2025 College Board

| Row DAnalysis and ReasoningComplex Understanding(0–1 points) | 0 pointsDoes not meet the criteria for one point. | 1 pointDemonstrates a complex understanding of the historical development that is the focus of the prompt through sophisticated argumentation and/or effective use of evidence. |
|---|---|---|
| | Decision Rules and Scoring Notes | |
| | | Responses that earn this point:May demonstrate a complex understanding through sophisticated argumentation that is relevant to the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways, such as:• Explaining multiple themes or perspectives to explore complexity or nuance; OR• Explaining multiple causes or effects, multiple similarities or differences, or multiple continuities or changes; OR• Explaining both cause and effect, both similarity and difference, or both continuity and change; OR• Explaining relevant and insightful connections within and across periods or geographical areas. These connections should clearly relate to an argument that responds to the prompt.May demonstrate a complex understanding through effective use of evidence relevant to an argument that addresses the prompt. This may be done in a variety of ways, such as:• Effectively using seven documents to support an argument that responds to the prompt; OR• Explaining how the point of view, purpose, historical situation, and/or audience of at least four documents supports an argument that responds to the prompt; OR• Using documents and evidence beyond the documents effectively to demonstrate a sophisticated understanding of different perspectives relevant to the prompt. |
| | | Demonstrating a complex understanding might include any of the following, if appropriate elaboration is provided:• The response argues that the rise of liberalism encouraged the federal government's role in the United States economy to increase steadily throughout the period, which eventually led to a resurgence of conservatism, arguing for a more limited role for the federal government. It then qualifies this argument by discussing how many federal programs such as Social Security remained popular despite growing conservative sentiment. [Explaining multiple perspectives]• The response argues that the federal government's role in the United States economy was felt differently in various regions throughout this period. It points to the effect of government spending for urban areas in the North and West during the New Deal and Second World War, and the influence of government spending on the rise of the Sunbelt during the 1950s through 1970s. [Explaining insightful connections across geographical areas] |
| | Additional Notes:• This complex understanding must be part of the argument and may be demonstrated in any part of the response.• While it is not necessary for this complex understanding to be woven throughout the response, it must be more than merely a phrase or reference.• To earn a point for complexity by using seven documents in support of an argument, there must be an attempt to use all seven documents to effectively support an argument, but the use of the documents may be unevenly or inconsistently developed, or the document use may be weaker in one or two instances. | |

© 2025 College Board

Document Summaries

| Document | Summary of Content | Explains the relevance of point of view [POV], purpose, situation, and/or audience by elaborating on examples such as: |
|---|---|---|
| 1. Letter from women members of the Workers Council of Colored People to Harry Hopkins, head administrator of the Works Progress Administration (WPA), 1937 | • Claims the Works Progress Administration's discrimination against women of color is negatively impacting their quality of life• Asks for investigation into why teachers are not being employed• States that White women have been hired for jobs while African American women lost their jobs• Asks for relief from the government for African American women if they cannot be hired by the WPA | • The women members of the Workers Council of Colored People wrote this letter to alert Harry Hopkins and the WPA to the unexplained injustices enacted by the organization. [audience/purpose]• The letter was written during the New Deal when the federal government was growing in size and providing more services to Americans, while Jim Crow racial discrimination was still prevalent. [situation] |
| 2. United States War Food Administration, pamphlet distributed to farmers, 1943 | • States that if enough farm laborers can't be supplied, surplus workers from other areas will be supplied• States that migrant farm laborers come from Mexico, Jamaica, and the Bahamas• States that agreements are made with other countries to bring in these laborers | • The pamphlet was written during the Second World War, at a time when there were labor shortages because of mass mobilization for the war effort. [situation]• The audience of the pamphlet was farmers who were seeking to support the war effort by recruiting immigrant laborers due to labor shortages during the war. [audience] |
| 3. Federal officials attending an exhibition about the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956, a law that funded the creation of a system of interstate highways across the United States, 1957 | • Depicts an exhibition map of the public roads that connect to form a national highway system• Shows federal officials standing in front of the map | • The map was created at a time when the United States was focused on defending the country from foreign attack during the Cold War. [situation]• The map was created to inform politicians and the public about the intended outcomes of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956. [purpose] |
| 4. President John F. Kennedy, State of the Union address, 1962 | • Argues that the wealth of the United States should be used to expand opportunities for Americans• Argues for the importance of health insurance for older Americans• Claims that private health insurance only helps a few Americans and is too costly and limited | • The State of the Union address was delivered at a time when liberal ideas about using government power to address social issues such as poverty and to improve Americans' lives were influential throughout the country. [situation]• The State of the Union message was delivered in order to convince Americans to support health insurance provided by the federal government for older Americans. [purpose] |

© 2025 College Board

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | • Argues that the government should extend health insurance to elderly Americans | |
| 5. Barry Goldwater, speech accepting the Republican Party presidential nomination, 1964 | • Argues that the Republican Party is focused on the freedom of Americans• Argues that Republicans are focused on resisting concentrated power and keeping power with the people• Argues that Republicans focus on creating opportunities for Americans while not abandoning those in need• Argues that government should maintain a free and competitive economy• Argues that government should be close to the people affected | • The speech was delivered at a time when conservatives in the country were becoming increasingly critical of federal programs and the legacy of the New Deal in the United States. [situation]• Conservatives, such as Barry Goldwater, believed that liberalism in government threatened freedom by increasing federal power. [point of view] |
| 6. César Chávez, statement to the United States Senate, 1969 | • Argues that farm workers should be helped by Congress and the nation• Argues that unions are necessary to help farm workers• Argues that unions need government support to be successful• Asks for the assistance of the American people and Congress | • Union activists such as Chávez believed that farm workers need to unite to improve their bargaining power against growers through support from the federal government. [point of view]• During the 1960s, the spread of the African American Civil Rights movement encouraged other groups, such as predominantly Latino farm workers, to advocate for their rights. [situation] |
| 7. Marjorie S. Holt, Republican member of Congress, The Case Against the Reckless Congress, 1976 | • Claims that America is devolving into tyranny• States that the level of government spending is high and argues that taxation and inflation hurt private industry• Argues that Congress is at fault for economic problems because of high spending• Argues that central government planning leads to tyranny• Argues that people are governed best by state and local governments | • During the 1970s, economic stagnation led many Americans to question the size and actions of the federal government, which contributed to a rise in the power of the Republican Party. [situation]• Holt hoped to convince the American people that liberalism was failing them and that conservative philosophies should guide the federal government instead. [purpose] |

© 2025 College Board